

THE BRITISH PLAYERS
MEMBERSHIP FORM
2011-2012

The BRITISH PLAYERS (formerly the British Embassy Players), formed in 1964 by John Palmer and a small group of British Embassy staff, now has over 200 members drawn from the Embassy staff, local British and Commonwealth subjects, and Americans. The Players are managed by a Board of Directors that meets monthly.

The Players perform three productions each season, starting in the fall and ending in late spring with the annual Old Time Music Hall. All productions are by British playwrights or are British in content and include pantomimes, mysteries, farces, and traditional music halls. The Players have also performed one-night shows at nursing homes, clubs, Embassy departments, and local organisations to raise money for charities. In addition, over the years, the Players have made substantial direct donations to both British and American charities.

Additionally, the Players hold many social events. The Players provide a connection between the British community and the American community. One facet of the Group's involvement in the Washington community is sponsorship of the Ruby Griffith Award Competition, with awards given for all-around production excellence to amateur theater groups in the area. The competition, named for an early Player's mentor, takes place annually and attracts entries from many theatre groups in the metropolitan area.
